

Med Chi Society Post-Elective Prize

There will be an annual Prize to be known as the Med Chi Society Post-Elective Prize. This Prize is worth £1,000.

The Prize is awarded annually in February at the Norwich Medical School Electives evening. The Prize may be split between more than one recipient. If no candidate is judged to be of sufficient merit, the Prize shall not be awarded.

Year 5 MB/BS students are eligible to apply for the Prize as long as they have:

- a. Successfully completed their elective
- b. Attained excellent in all the categories assessed in the supervisor elective report form
- c. Met all deadlines including those set by occupational health
- d. Responded promptly to all correspondence
- e. Written and submitted a 1000 word essay detailing their recent elective experience
- f. Confirmed that they will give a presentation at the Norwich Medical School Electives Evening

In order to apply for the Prize, students must submit a 1,000-word essay, clearly stating:

- a. Where they went for their elective
- b. What they did during their elective
- c. What was good about the elective
- d. What was challenging / eye opening
- e. What they learnt from the elective and how will this help them in their future career
- f. The benefits of the elective to the student and the host institution / community

Please submit two hard copies of your essay to Emma Grant in the EFRY Learning and Teaching Hub by 5.00pm on Tuesday 15th January 2013.

The ten best essays will be selected following double marking. The Elective Committee will select five essays for consideration by the Med Chi Society.

The Med Chi Society will select three students to present at the annual Norwich Medical School Electives Evening and the winner will be decided by the Med Chi Society representative following the presentations.
